

Platform Components

The ECT Ring Back System runs on a reliable and scalable platform. The application, media and signaling functions are separated, allowing the platform to work in fixed, mobile and/or next-generation networks. Your actual architecture may vary depending on your network requirements. Click on the different elements for a description.

