

You are moving to a next-generation network and need one solution for your legacy and next-generation networks.

You have already invested in your next-generation network on a large scale. There is no point in spending more than what you need for a Ring Back solution. Our system architecture allows you to run the service for both networks. You only need one solution for both networks.

You will get a system dimensioned according to your needs, which is based on the number of subscribers and traffic patterns for each network. The system can grow along with the number of subscribers. You will get the right signaling elements to handle traffic from both networks successfully.

To ensure your revenue increases, you will also get a powerful set of features and tools to choose content, sales channels and offer a unique user experience.
